SPIRIT OF THE AGE. Wednesday, Sept 2, 1885.

Mr. Hendricks is a very temperate man, but likes an occasional drink of national bridge, which opens in the Old Tom gin.

Canon Farar is to visit this country September 11. He will probably lecture later.

The Washington correspondent of the Hartford Times makes the glad prophesy for Virginia that "Wise is going to be badly beaten. He will fail to get the negro vote in many sections of the state. There is a bad break in the readjuster party, but even if it was solid Lee would be elected, for the simple reason that Virginia is democratic. When Mahone had the federal government behind him he man-Never was the imperial position of aged to carry the state. I think the civil service examinations as they are conducted are forces. Take letter carriers, for instance. A boy fresh from the high school has all of Pennsylvania, the lumber of Michithe chances in the world and the man from the shop none at all. The boy is fresh on the subjects he's questioned on. If I had my way I'd examine a man's ability to read bad writing quickly and his legs to discover his going qualities, and I'd find out about his honesty. That would give us a better letter carrier than all the geographical or algebraical conundrums in the world -- [Internal Revenue Collector Troupe of Conn.

President Cleveland is credited with the declaration that he was elected for other business than helping to win a political campaign in Ohio or any other state. If the President sticks to this view of the matter there may not be so much fun in political campaigns as there used to be when Presidents went swinging around the circle, but the public business is certain to be better performed. Presidents were not originally intended by the constitution of the United States to be winners of other people's political battles. BUFFALO AS A RAILROAD CENTER.

All through the summer the harbor s full of life-tugs dart hither and you, lake vessels, big and little, receive their cargoes, huge steamers and propellers take on passengers or freight for the upper lakes, while numerous pleasure-yachts, named for sea-nymphs and dryads, steam toward the Intercenter with massive swing, and permits them to pass through on their way "down the river." Finally, and most important, stretching in all directions, are the iron rails over which the com-merce of the great West reaches the Eastern seaboard. To win the heart of this queen city to-day you must court her in the role of a railway king. You must come as the projector of a new trunk line, prepared to lay your millions at her in return for a site from which to throw another girdle around the city, and commanding lot on Delaware Avenue, "The Circle," or fronting one of the many park approaches, whereupon to erect a palace of Medina sandstone, or a cypress- shingled villa rivaling those of Newport or the famous Jerusalem Road.

signs point to the realization of the prophecy that she is destined to sit like a commercial Constantinople stretching along the Bosporus of the broad Niagara, and holding the keys been settled by the United States of the Dardanelles that shall open and shut the gates of trade for the regions east and west." A study of the globe will show why, from the founder of the city in 1797 down to the latest rallway manager of 1885, eager to obtain an approach to the International Bridge, aready inadequate to the demands of traffic and mooting the revival of the agara, every sagacious person has predicted a great commercial future for the Queen City of the empire State. With the completion of the Northern Pacific Railroad the whole world will pay her tribute. Not only will the products of the immense wheat fields of the Red River, the coal, oil, and iron gan and the Southern States, the ores of Lake Superior, and the live stock of the great western prairies pass through her gates, but the commerce of Asia with the Atlantic States, with England, and the Continent. In the year off Buffalo's incorporation, 1832, when there were but one hundred miles of rail in the United States, was granted the first permit to put a railroad through Eric county. Now, without the repetition of a rod, over nine thousand miles of travel are ossible on the lines centering at Buffalo alone, as the starting point or terminus of twenty different railway lines, No city, save one, owes so much to railroads as does Buffalo. Her terminal facilities are unequaled, and her transfer yards at East Buffalo are the largest in the world, with the outlying country encompassed for miles about by a net-work of tracks, approaching closer and closer the harbor-side to pour their freight of goal, salt, and petroleum in-copper ore. Commercial Buffalo is like a portly and self-satisfied spider, supreme in the center of her web. The cusiness man has his choice among six different routes to New York city. The New York Central and Hudson River; the New York, Lake Erie, and Western; the New York, West Shore, and Buffalo: the Delaware, Lackwanna, and Western; cases out of a hundred received no ben-fit; and related a case of a celebrated vision of the Buffalo, New York, and to Philadelphia three times, and twice State, Stretching away in an opposite visit he was advised not to have it in-Southern, the Michigan Central, the cised, it being located in a favorable Grand Trunk of Canada, the Great Western division, and the New York. Chicago, and St. Louis, or "Nickel > plate." The remaining nine roads are local lines. Among the most impor-tant of these is the Buffalo Creek Railway, a belt freight line four miles in length, extending down on either side of the ship canal. Every railroad entering the city has connection with this, and by the terms of the city's grant its rates are uniform to all, thus placing the railroads on equal terms. Within the city limits railroad corporations own 2,746 acres, or more than four square miles of territory. There are 436 miles of standard guage track-more miles of rail than are contained in any other city on the globe. Within the corporate boundaries of his a railroad journey equal to a trip to New York over the Lackawanna, with twenty-six miles to spare.—Jane M. Welch in Harper's Magazine for July.

Patti's First Stage Dress.

When Adelina Patti was a child sho often sat on the lap of Mme. Lauza, who now lives at 102 Third avenue, the great singer, had been married before and had four children, two of very unhappy, but that was before I knew them. The little woman was of a very intense nature, all fire and flame, yet not without her gentler moods, when she was very charming and loveable. As a child Adeline was extremely like the mother, could give way to sudden bursts of passion, which were as quickly over, though not apparently regretted, and then she become most affectionate and show a sweetness of disposition which it is a joy to me yet to remember."

She needed few lessons, singing as natural as a nightingale between the pauses of the wind. Her half-brother, E. Barelli, who, I think, is still living in Philadelphia, gave her the few lessons she needed It was a light and pleasant task for both teacher and pupil. Musical knowledge seemed to come to her without any effort of her own, and like a bird she did her work unbidden. When she was 7 years old we came to this country about the same time and renewed our acquaintance in this city. I did sewing, and was sometimes engaged by Mme. But she had to wear it all the same. She sang in it and made a hit. The price of that dress was $37. I called with the bill a couple of times, but was not paid. I have that bill yet, though it is thirty-four years since I gave up try-ing to collect it. Patti has forgotten about the dress her mother ordered and it will never be paid for. I'd hunt me up a vailey Wyoming, where the land is good and the water plenty, and I'd build a little town, and on one block I'd put a fine row of tenements for all my friends to live in, and the middle house should be a splendid theatre, which would do for a church on Sundays, and I'd have a railroad to the town and let her grow.
